ALL CHILDREN HAVE RIGHTS !

U.N. Convention on the Rights of the Child. Article 1

CHILDREN & YOUNG PEOPLE'S Commissioner Scotland

INTRODUCTION

What is meant by Child Rights?

Child rights are the fundamental rights that are provided to every child for their proper growth and development. Children have the right to be with their parents and to have a human identity. They also have the right to physical protection, food, education, health care, and criminal laws that are right for their living. Children also have the right to equal protection of their civil rights and to not be treated differently because of their race, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, or color.

Need for Child Rights

When children's rights are protected, they have a much better chance of growing up in society. During a war, a lot of children are hurt in big ways. Most of the time, children have to work in places that are very dangerous and unhealthy. They end up not being able to read or write, and they don't have any skills. Because of this, they become criminals. These rights will protect them from the different kinds of abuse they might face in their lives.

The Convention on the Rights of the Child says that child rights are part of international law. It says that all children should be treated in a fair, equal, and dignified way. The UN General Assembly has made these rights universal claims, which means that anyone who discriminates against or hurts a child can be punished.

Some fundamental child rights are listed below:

- Right to Education
- Right to Survival
- Right to Development
- Right to Health
- Right to Protected from Violence
- Right to a Family Life
- Right to an Opinion
- Right to be protected from Exploitation

Conclusion

Every child has a right to live on this Earth. Government has to make sure that children can use the rights they have. Moreover, we should also make sure that we do everything we can to protect the most vulnerable people in our communities. We can keep them safe from harm, child labor, and war. We can help them build a better future for themselves and for the upcoming generations.

THE RIGHT TO EDUCATION

Education is the most important thing in human life the right to education is an innate right. The Right to Education is the right to literacy and knowledge. The various types of right to education are primary education, secondary education, vocational education and higher education. Every child has the right to primary and elementary education.

To be meaningful and effective, education must be available, accessible, acceptable and adaptable. Education should be available free of cost for till the primary and elementary level without bias or discrimination on the bases of race, gender, colour, religious belief, economic status, language and nationality, ethnicity or disability.

The school should be safe, accessible and have basic amenities for its students. Education should be affordable to all and text books should either be supplied free or heavily subsidised for the students.

Higher education should be accessible and equitable for all. Persons with disabilities should be given equal opportunity as others for the same educational facilities. The teaching – learning process and methodologies of the schools should be acceptable and in adherence to values and to the national norms set by the government.

At the same time they also should providing quality education. Adaptability means the education must to be flexible and easy, sustainable and having a far – reaching impact…

PROBLEM IDENTIFICATION AND CAUSEOF THE PROBLEM

POVERTY AND ECONOMIC BARRIERS

India has a large population living below the poverty line. Many families struggle to meet basic needs, which leaves little resources for education-related expenses such as school fees, uniforms, books, and transportation.

LACK OF INFRASTRUCTURE

In rural areas, there is often a lack of proper schools, classrooms, and basic amenities like clean drinking water and sanitation facilities. This makes it difficult for children, especially girls, to attend school regularly.

CHILD LABOUR

Economic pressures force many children into labor to contribute to their family's income. This leaves them with no time or energy for education. Child labor perpetuates a cycle of illiteracy and poverty.

SAVE GIRL, EDUCATE GIRL

Gender Inequality:

Deep-rooted societal norms and gender biases often result in girls being given lower priority for education. Early marriage and household responsibilities further limit their access to education

Lack of Awareness:

In some communities, there's limited awareness about the benefits of education. Parents might not fully understand how education can positively impact their children's future prospects.

OBJECTIVE TO BE ACHIEVED

Community Empowerment:

The primary objective of this community development project is to empower the local community by providing them with the necessary resources, skills, and opportunities to uplift their socio-economic status. This includes offering educational support, vocational training, and access to essential services.

Skill Enhancement:

Another key goal of the project is to enhance the skill set of community members, equipping them with practical skills that can enhance their employability and income-generating potential. This will be achieved through workshops, training sessions, and mentorship programs.

Youth Engagement:

Fostering the active participation of youth is integral to the project's objectives. By engaging young individuals in skill-building activities, leadership development, and community initiatives, we aim to channel their energy and potential towards constructive avenues.

Health and Hygiene Improvement:

The project seeks to improve the health and hygiene conditions of the community. This involves promoting awareness about sanitation practices, providing access to clean water, and organizing health camps for regular check-ups.
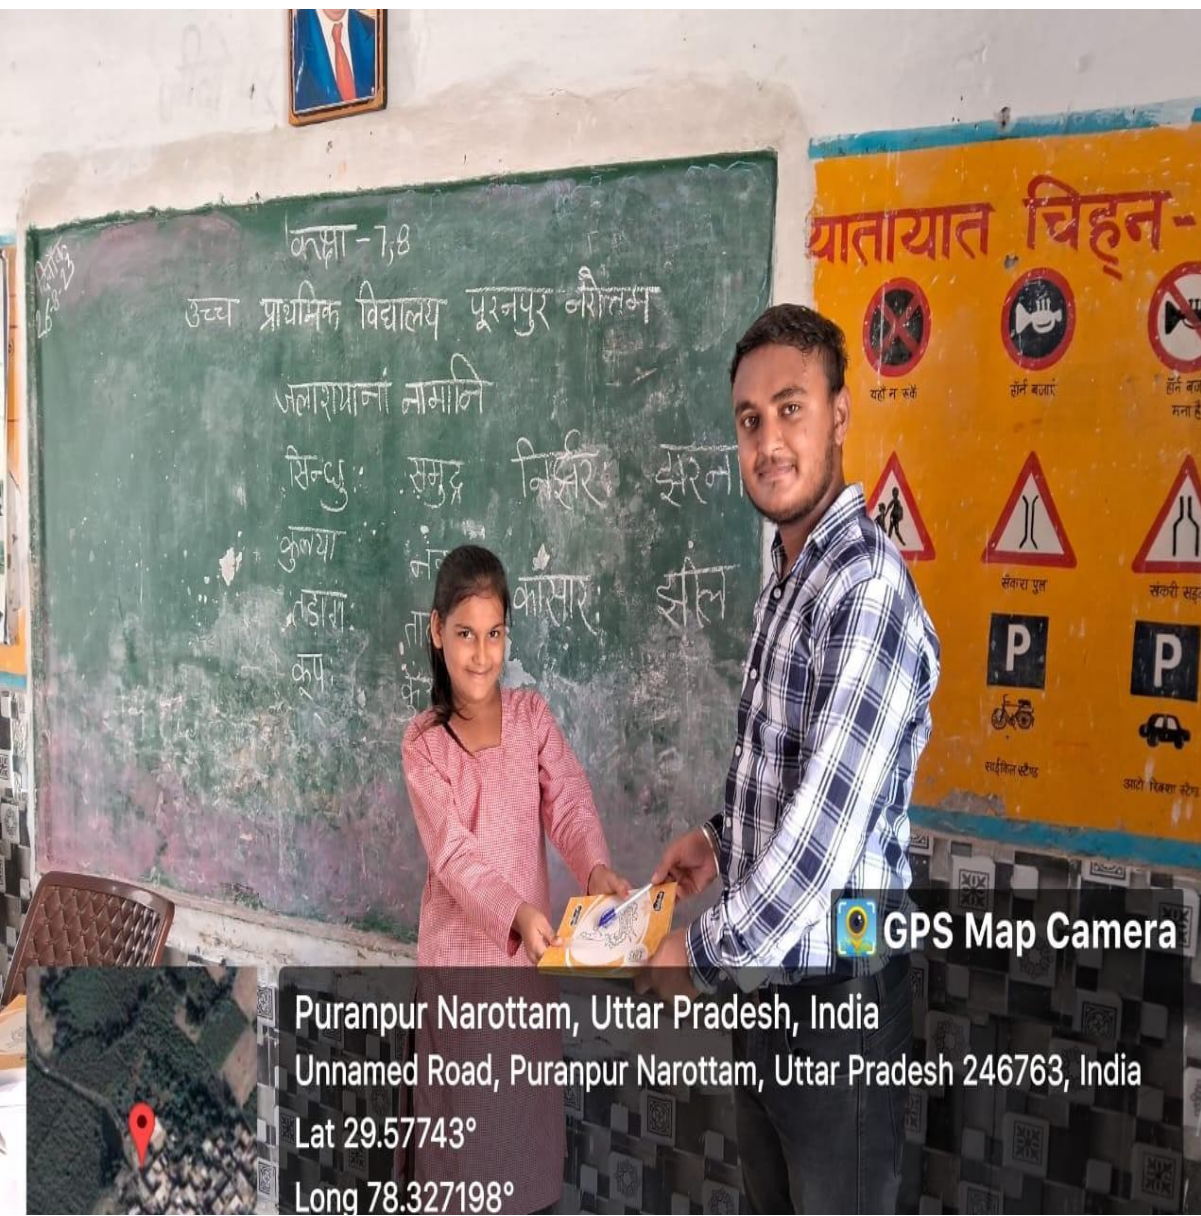

Promotion of Education:

Ensuring access to quality education for all community members, especially children, is a key objective. The project aims to establish and enhance educational facilities, scholarship programs, and after-school support to promote a culture Of learning

Various Steps taken to achieve the objectives

The realization of the project's objectives required a thoughtful and comprehensive approach, encompassing a range of strategic steps that were meticulously planned and executed:

Assessment and Needs Identification:

The project began with a thorough assessment of the needs and preferences of the orphaned children. This involved engaging with the children directly, as well as consulting caregivers and relevant stakeholders. By understanding their unique circumstances and challenges, the project team gained insights that informed subsequent interventions.

Strategic Partnerships and Resource Mobilization:

To ensure the availability of essential resources, the project team collaborated with local partners, NGOs, and philanthropic donors. These partnerships were crucial in securing funding, educational materials, and other necessary resources. The project team also leveraged the support of volunteers and community members who were passionate about making a difference.

Tailored Workshops and Educational Sessions:

A series of interactive workshops and educational sessions were designed and conducted for the orphaned children. These sessions covered a diverse range of topics, from basic literacy and numeracy to life skills, creative arts, and personal development. The workshops were designed to be engaging, interactive, and tailored to the specific needs and interests of the children.

Creation of a Conducive Learning Environment:

A dedicated space within the premises of the child orphans NGO was established as a safe and inspiring learning environment. This space was thoughtfully designed to be welcoming and conducive to learning, with colour decorations, comfortable seating, and age-appropriate learning materials. The environment was intended to encourage curiosity and foster a love for learning.

Holistic Mentorship and Emotional Support:

Recognizing the emotional challenges faced by orphaned children, the project incorporated mentorship and emotional support as integral components. Trained mentors and volunteers offered one-on-one guidance, a listening ear, and a source of encouragement. This support aimed to boost the children's self-esteem, help them process their emotions, and provide a sense of stability..

Community Building Activities:

To foster a sense of community and belonging, the project organized various community-building activities. These activities included group discussions, team projects, and collaborative events that encouraged the children to interact, share experiences, and build supportive relationships. The goal was to create a sense of unity and solidarity among the children.

Monitoring and Adaptation:

Regular monitoring and evaluation mechanisms were put in place to track the progress and impact of the project. Feedback from both the children and caregivers was collected to assess the effectiveness of interventions. This data-driven approach allowed the project team to make necessary adjustments and improvements based on real-time insights.

Documentation and Advocacy:

The project's journey and impact were documented through photographs, videos, and success stories. This documentation served multiple purposes: it celebrated the achievements of the children, highlighted the effectiveness of the interventions, and raised awareness about the challenges faced by orphaned children. These materials were used for advocacy efforts to garner support and promote similar initiatives.

DISTRIBUTING EDUCATIONAL ITEMS AND ORGANISING WORKSHOP FOR STUDENTS

Our NGO "RAMKISHAN MEMORIAL JAN KALYAN VIKAS SAMITI" Distributed some EDUCATIONAL ITEMS such as PEN, PENCIL , NOTEBOOK , BOOKS which we have collected by organising a DONATION CAMP . The unused items and books of local students are distributed among the children of nearby GOVERNMENT SCHOOL .

Our NGO also organize a SCIENCE WORKSHOP for the children of government schools in which they are shown some SCIENCE models such as DEMONSTRATION OF WATER CYCLE , BATTERY ENGINES , DIFFERENT BODY ORGANS OF HUMANS ,ETC.

In future also we will take some necessary steps for their better EDUCATION and try to provide them necessary facilities which they are lacking

Effectiveness of the Project:

The community development project, aimed at empowering orphaned children through education and emotional support, yielded remarkable outcomes that underscored its effectiveness and positive impact. The carefully crafted interventions and dedicated efforts of all involved stakeholders culminated in transformative changes that were both quantifiable and deeply meaningful:

Academic Progress and Engagement:

One of the most tangible indicators of the project's success was the noticeable improvement in the academic performance of the orphaned children. As educational tools were distributed and tailored workshops were conducted, children exhibited increased enthusiasm for learning. This was reflected not only in their improved grades but also in their active participation in classroom activities and discussions.

Emotional Well-Being and Self-Esteem:
The holistic approach of the project encompassed emotional support and mentorship, leading to significant improvements in the emotional well-being of the children. Through one-on-one interactions with mentors and group discussions, children began to open up about their feelings, fears, and aspirations. This newfound outlet for expression contributed to improved self-esteem and a greater sense of confidence in their own abilities

Shift in Attitudes and Aspirations:

Over the course of the project, there was a noticeable shift in the attitudes and aspirations of the orphaned children. Many who once felt limited by their circumstances now expressed dreams of pursuing higher education, skilled professions, and personal passions. The project provided them with a tangible belief in their potential and a renewed sense of hope for the future.

Building Resilient Relationships:

The sense of community that the project fostered proved to be a cornerstone of its effectiveness. Children who had once felt isolated due to their orphaned status now formed connections with peers who shared similar experiences. These connections transcended the project's duration, creating a support network that extended beyond the confines of the NGO.

Positive Feedback and Endorsement:

Feedback from both the children and their caregivers provided powerful testament to the project's effectiveness. Caregivers observed positive changes in the children's behavior, outlook, and willingness to engage in activities. The children themselves expressed gratitude for the opportunities they had been provided and the sense of belonging they had gained.

Visible Transformations in the Learning Environment:

The physical learning environment itself underwent a visible transformation, reflective of the project's impact. The once-sterile space was now alive with colorful decorations, vibrant displays of the children's artwork, and an atmosphere of shared learning and growth. This visual transformation symbolized the positive change that had taken place within the hearts and minds of the children.

Long-Term Ripple Effects:

Perhaps one of the most profound indicators of the project's effectiveness was the potential for long-term ripple effects. As the children continued to benefit from the educational tools, emotional support, and sense of community, they were poised to become agents of change within their own lives and communities. The project's impact had the potential to extend far beyond its immediate scope.

In conclusion, the effectiveness of the community development project was evidenced by the quantifiable improvements in academic performance, emotional well-being, and attitudes of the orphaned children. Equally significant were the intangible transformations – the renewed sense of hope, the establishment of resilient relationships, and the empowerment that would undoubtedly shape the trajectories of these young lives for years to come.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the community development project undertaken in collaboration with the child orphans NGO successfully addressed the educational and emotional needs of children. By providing them with access to educational tools and support, the project contributed to their overall development and empowerment. The efforts undertaken not only laid the foundation for a brighter future for these children but also highlighted the potential for positive change when individuals and organizations come together with a shared purpose.

This project serves as a testament to the transformative power of community-driven initiatives and emphasizes the importance of continued support for vulnerable populations. As we move forward, it is essential to sustain and expand such efforts to create a lasting impact on the lives of those in need

ABOUT THE ORGANISATION

The focus of the NGO also focuses on increasing the transparency of traditionally closed systems and exposing malpractices. Works by focusing on exposing the failures of the legal system. Many people approach HRO to solve their problems or to satisfy their troubles, believing in helping them as well as working on those issues. Which involves a large public. For which the Public Grievance Assistance centre and the Right to Information Assistance Centre are working as self-managed units of the organization.

To ensure that 100% of all government schemes reach the ground level continuously uses the Right to Information Act and teaches civil society to use this weapon, NGO believes that 100% of all schemes reach the ground Having problems automatically reduces.
